Gas, Oil Shortage In Wake of Strikes

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gasoline was back on the scarcity list in some sections of the country today as a strike of CIO oil workers gained headway. More than a dozen refineries and plants were closed, and others were ready to shut down as workers took strike votes. Emergency rationing of gasoline was ordered in Toledo, O.

As the federal government stepped in to attempt to effect a settlement of the strike started last Monday by the oil workers, the stoppages curtailed gasoline supplies in scores of cities and idled more than 20,000 workers. Elsewhere across the nation, labor disputes kept an additional 200,000 men and women away from their jobs.

(International News Service reported from Washington that the strike may affect the fuel supply this winter and quoted Edgar L. Warren, new head of the Labor Department's Conciliation Service, that the oil trouble has replaced the automotive disputes as the No. 1 strike problem. Warren said any spread of the disputes will "unquestionably" affect the supply situation next winter.)

The oil strike threatened to give Detroit a worse immediate problem than its idleness of more than 80,000 men in the automobile manufacturing industry. Available gasoline supplies for the city of 1,600,000 were described as sufficient to last only until Monday.

The oil strike hit hardest in the Texas Gulf Coast region where 14,000 were idle in refineries and affiliated industries.

Closing of the only remaining refinery in the Toledo area last night resulted in emergency rationing of gasoline for the Ohio city. The Sun Oil Co. said it closed its refinery after its workers, although independent, refused to pass picket lines set up by the CIO oil workers.

Toledo councilmen and oil company officials planned to keep open stations in various sections of the city to supply vital city and delivery services.

Large cities feeling the pinch of gas and fuel shortages included Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland.

CIO union leaders mapped final plans for the closing of the huge standard oil plant at Whiting, Ind., the only large refinery in northern Indiana continuing in operation.

In the oil-rich Texas gulf coast area, the labor troubles centered in Port Arthur, Houston, and Texas City.

In the Detroit area, where more than 80,000 of the country's 220,000 idle are out because of strikes and shutdowns, union leaders went ahead with plans for strike votes in plants of the "Big Three"—Chrysler, General Motors and Ford.

Chrysler Corporation's Dodge truck factory in Detroit closed today because picketes prevented entry of 800 employes to the plant.

Tojo Gives GI His Ribbons

TOKYO, Sept. 21 (AP)—The envy of the rabid souvenir hunters in the American occupation army is PFC Donald Kincaid of Dayton, O., whose prize is Gen. Hideki Tojo's complete set of campaign ribbons—given to Kincaid by Tojo himself.

Kincaid, a military policeman, was one of several assigned to stand guard at the bedside of the war-making premier after his suicide attempt.

When Tojo's dress uniform was brought to him one day, he remond his set of 24 ribbons and handed them to Kincaid. Kincaid said he didn't know why he was singled out to receive the ribbons.

"I been guarding Jap prisoners for 18 months and we treat this guy like all the rest," he said.

Dewey Admits Marshall Letter

By LEO W. O'BRIEN

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 21 (INS)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey refrained from using in his 1944 presidential campaign the information that President Roosevelt knew of the Jap sneak attack on Pearl Harbor 15 hours in advance.

The Republican presidential nominee, his intimates said today, refused to use the sensational campaign material at the urgent request of Gen. George C. Marshall, U. S. Army chief of staff.

The Governor, who may have sacrificed his White House chances by his silence, was told by Gen. Marshall American lives might be saved if the Japs were kept ignorant of the fact the United States had cracked their "ultra secret" code.

This knowledge was in Gov. Dewey's possession long before election day, and he was fully aware of the possible lift the flinging of the charge might give his political fortunes.

Gov. Dewey was asked today whether he would make public the Marshall letter, delivered to him at Albany on Sept. 27, after his return from his Pacific coast campaign trip.

"Since I received the letter in confidence," he replied, "I would refer you to Gen. Marshall for the text of the letter."

The governor also was asked if he would accept an invitation to

Hess Ruled Sane, Hold Neurath

NUERNBERG, Germany, Sept. 21 (AP)—The Russians named their judge and prosecutor today for the German war crimes trial this winter and the French announced capture of Baron Konstantin von Neurath, one of the 24 listed for arraignment before the international tribunal.

Sir David Maxwell Fyfe, British prosecutor, said the question of the sanity of Rudolf Hess had been thoroughly explored and that the one time third ranking Nazi was suitable for trial.

Around-World Flights In 6 Days Start Sept. 28

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 (AP)—Regular 'round-the-world air service, dream of American flying men since the Wright brothers first got off the ground at Kitty-Hawk, begins Sept. 28 from Washington National Airport.

Six and one-quarter days (151 hours), will be required for the 23,147-mile flight, scheduled as "The Globester." Planes will leave Washington each Friday.

As the U. S. Army Air Transport Command made this announcement today it was learned:

1—Service will be restricted normally to military personnel, cargo and mail. However, a civilian certified as traveling in the national interest can make the complete flight for $2431 plus 15 per cent transportation tax.

2—Later, when the Army can get out of the business and planes are made available, U. S. commercial airlines will carry any civilian who wants to go; any civilian, that is, who has the price and is willing to undergo innoculations for everything from smallpox to cholera.

Howard Hughes, movie producer and plane builder, holds the record for globe girdling by air. He flew 14,824 miles from New York to Paris, Moscow, Fairbanks, Alaska; Minneapolis and back to New York in three days 19 hours eight minutes and 10 seconds. That was 8323 miles short of "The Globester" run.

Three reporters will be aboard the first Globester. The departure date is the 21st anniversary of the U. S. Army Air Corps' first 'round-the-world flight of 1924—a junket that required 175 days to cover 26,345 miles and was completed by two of four planes.

With perhaps 20 passengers and crew of six the Globester will leave Washington at 5 p. m. Friday, Sept. 28. It will pick up 10 passengers at New York city's LaGuardia Airport at 6:30 and depart at 7:30 p. m., covering 23,147 miles by way of the Azores, North Africa, Egypt, India, China, the Philippines, Hawaii and back to Washington at midnight, Thursday, Oct. 4.

Here's the schedule (120 hours 45 minutes in the air, 30 hours 15 minutes on the ground):

Washington to New York, to Bermuda, to Santa Maria, the Azores; Casablanca; Tripoli, Cairo; Abadan, Iran; Karachi, India; Calcutta, India; Luliang (50 miles east of Kunming, China); Manila; Guam; Kwajalein; Johnston Island; Honolulu; San Francisco; Kansas City; Washington.

Longest hop will be from Honolulu to San Francisco—2399 miles. Longest stops will be four hours at Casablanca, Cairo and Karachi.

Inez Robb of International News Service will be one of the three reporters aboard.

Countess Ciano Still Loves Dad, Slain Mussolini

ROME, Sept. 21 (AP)—Countess Edda Ciano says she still "loved and admired" her father, Benito Mussolini, even after he put to death her husband, former Foreign Minister Ciano.

Edda Ciano

"What I want most of all is that my case be settled one or the other," Countess Ciano said.

She goes where she pleases on Lipari island, where she is interned, smokes American cigarettes and has a superb view of the Mediterranean, in which she swims occasionally.

She wore light blue slacks, a flannel blouse and tennis sneakers when she met correspondents in the parlor of her villa.

"I expected something better than Lipari," she said.

Corespondents observed she really was in a very special position and she replied:

"I have always been in a very special position. In the end, it will be in a very special position that I will be shot.

"It is my fate that I get the worst news suddenly. In Switzerland I turned the radio to the Milan station at exactly the instant it announced, 'An enormous crowd is moving toward the Piazza Loreto to view Mussolini's body.'"

She said Claretta Petacci, Mussolini's mistress, had a great influence on her father.

"She became the true head of the government," Countess Ciano said. "I hated her because I saw where she was dragging my father."

She asserted Mussolini "intimately hated the Germans . . . if he had not gone to war on their side, they would have occupied us in one month . . ."

"Hitler was more human than generally believed and he certainly had charm," Edda said. "The ferocious man was Ribbentrop. He hated my husband because he knew him to be anti-German and ready to deal with the Allies."

Order Jap Army Head Jailed

TOKYO, Sept. 21 (AP)—Gen. MacArthur today ordered the "immediate arrest" of Lt. Gen. Kenji Doihara—whose recent appointment to command Japan's first general army was given Allied acceptance—and issued a 10-point code to guide operations of the censored Jap press and radio.

Japan's cabinet met meanwhile for three hours to discuss problems which well-informed sources said included mounting food shortages and repatriation of Japanese civilians from Manchuria and Korea.

The newspaper Asahi today added another dime-novel thriller to the tales of Jap surrender-crisis intrigue, reporting former Premier Kantaro Suzuki barely escaped with his life from a band of armed Jap soldiers Aug. 15. The band, evidently angered by surrender plans, machine-gunned in quick succession two houses from which Suzuki had just departed.

Doihara, once called Japan's "Lawrence of Manchuria," was his country's advance agent in its Asiatic conquest.

His appointment as commander of the first general army, succeeding Field Marshal Sugiyama, who committed suicide, was a surprise to many Japs, who said his record was not one to inspire American confidence.

MacArthur's code for the Jap press specified news "must adhere strictly to the truth" and said "nothing may be printed which might directly or indirectly disturb public tranquility."

Meanwhile, U. S. Marines prepared to expand the smoothly running occupation of Japan to the big naval base of Sasebo on Kyushu. The Fifth Amphibious Force is to take over the base.

The roundup of war criminals continued smoothly, with U. S. Eighth Army forces taking Australian John Holland, allegedly linked with Tokyo broadcasts, from a barbershop at Sopporo to join Tojo's "Pearl Harbor gang" in jail.

MacArthur's headquarters asked the Jap government for information on the whereabouts and welfare of the Turkish ambassador to Japan and his staff. There was no immediate explanation.

Hub Wife Divorces Rewedded Colonel

Charging her Army officer husband had obtained a Nevada divorce—after she refused his request that she seek one—and had married another woman last March, Mrs. Ethel M. Wihtol of Lamartine st., Jamaica Plain, was herself granted a decree today by Judge Robert Gardiner Wilson, Jr., in Suffolk Probate court.

She testified she had visited her husband, Lt. Col. Karl F. Wihtol, while he was stationed in New York last November, and that he had asked her to obtain a divorce because he was "involved" with another woman whom he wished to marry.

She said she refused, and in January was served with papers from Nevada but that she took no action.

She learned, she said, he obtained the divorce March 2 and was married the same day at Carson City, Nev.

"The divorce was obtained on the grounds we had been living apart for three years," she said, "but that was not true. His Army duties took him to various parts of the country but I visited him week-ends several times."

She also asserted his Nevada address was fictitious and his belongings were still in her home.

Mrs. Elizabeth Nickerson of Main st., Watertown, who accompanied Mrs. Wihtol to New York last November, corroborated her testimony of the officer's request that she seek a divorce and his statement he was "involved" with another woman.

Mrs. Nickerson also produced a wedding announcement which had been mailed to her and her husband. It read:

"Mrs. Edward Ismon Goodrich announces the marriage of her daughter, Marjorie Alexandra Sperry, to Lt. Col. Karl F. Wihtol. The couple will be at home March 20 at 9350 Fifth ave., New York city."

Mrs. Wihtol testified she was married in August, 1921, and that Wihtol entered the Army as a captain in September, 1940, later advancing to the rank of lieutenant-colonel. She said he served 15 months in Texas and later in Washington and New York.

"Was he ever out of the country?" asked Judge Wilson.

"No," she answered.

"I guess that's how he got to be a lieutenant colonel," Judge Wilson remarked as he granted her a decree.

Hobby Is Models And Love So Now He's an Ex-Hubby

She didn't mind her husband having art for his hobby but it got so he fell in love with every model he hired and he hired plenty of them, Mrs. Helen H. Wallis of Summer st., Taunton, told Judge Robert G. Wilson in probate court today.

Mrs. Wallis won a divorce for cruel and abusive treatment, custody of three children and weekly support of $25.

"Every time he hired a model to pose he would tell me he was in love with her," she testified. "I had to put up with it for 15 years."

Mrs. Wallis said her husband came home one day and told her he was so much in love this time he was going to leave her. He began to pack, she said, while she protested. Her objections made him so angry he looped a necktie around her neck, crossed the ends and began strangling her, she declared.

Just as she was about to lose consciousness, Mrs. Wallis testified, she was rescued by her sister, Frances A. Benson.

Rationing To Stay for Top Meats

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 (AP)—The three lowest grades of beef will be sold without ration points on Oct. 1, food officials said today.

These grades, known as canner, cutter and utility, are used principally in canned and processed meats, hamburger, sausage and boiling meat. They make up about 20 per cent of the beef supply.

Pork, lamb and the three top grades of beef—commercial, good and choice—will continue to require ration points.

The low grades of beef will remain technically on the rationing list, although their ration values will be reduced to zero.

There has been no indication when the rationing of the other meats may be terminated. This will be determined largely by overseas commercial and relief requirements.

Army Ends Set-Aside Of 1945 Turkey Crop

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 (AP)—The Agriculture Department today announced termination of an order which set aside a portion of this year's turkey crop for the military services. Officials said the armed forces already had obtained the bulk of their requirements.

The order, lifted as of next Monday, applied in 23 states.

More Butter Alloted To Food Factories

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 (AP)—Food manufacturers will be allotted slightly more butter during the last three months of the year than in the current quarter.

Announcing this today, OPA said the butter ration of these users would be from 60 to 70 per cent of consumption in the 1942 base period. It is now 50 per cent.

World Goes On

Prophet Mum as Doom Hour Passes

PASADENA, Cal., Sept. 21 (AP)—Everything was quiet outside the home of the Rev. Charles G. Long today as 7:33 a. m., the hour at which he had said the world might dissolve in a cloud of shattered atoms, came and went.

There was no sign of life in the Spanish white stucco house as five reporters and four photographers kept vigil. The shade over the large front window was drawn tightly.

A milkman pulled out his watch, regarded the house quizzically, then drove on. Across the street five curious spectators stood under a weeping willow tree, waiting in a misty drizzle.

A man in a Navy officers uniform trundled out his garbage can on a child's toy wagon, and from another house a woman in a dressing gown carried hers to the curb.

A reporter remarked that the Rev. M. Long hadn't bothered to put out his garbage.

Finally a man came out of the Long house, but he was not the prophet.

"Good morning!" he greeted representatives of the press. "Just stay there all day long."

Then he slammed the door. When a reporter pressed the doorbell someone inside pulled aside the curtain over the glass and said: "No news today. Good-by."

The Rev. Mr. Long had set another deadline for humanity today. Should the globe safely weather his 7:33 a. m. forecast, he said, its destruction might be delayed until 5:33 p .m. today or possibly Sept. 29 or even next fall.

The 72-year-old retired missionary said the first deadline today was based on Jerusalem time, the second on California time, and that he didn't know which would prevail. He bases his prophecy on a vision seven years ago.

Long and his son, Richard, 32, declined to see reporters yesterday and a telephone inquiry brought the response:

"Wait for news from Heaven."

Mrs. Fred N. Thies, 31, one of Long's 50 followers who did her usual Thursday ironing in her Pasadena home, was "positive that Brother Long's vision will come true, even if it takes a year."

Discovery of the atomic bomb is a sure sign to mankind that the end is near, she said, adding that she and her husband were not going to "act foolishly about it and sell our home and our car, as many scoffers have asked us to do.

"Should there be a delay, as Brother Long says there might be, we would be left without anything if we sold our possessions," she said practically.

Senate Blocks Draft Revision

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 (AP)—A Senate proposal to revise the draft law was killed off today by the Senate military committee.

The committee acted in approving legislation, already passed by the House, to encourage voluntary enlistments in the armed forces through various inducements.

Chairman Thomas (D.) of Utah had planned to ask that the present selective service be limited to men 21 to 26 years.

"I gave up because I do not want to be in a position of delaying the Army and Navy plan to obtain men by enlistment," the chairman said.

Army Teaches Languages to German War Prisoners Before Returning Them to Germany to Aid Allies

PWs Trained in R. I. To Help Police Reich

By PAULINE WARREN

Behind barbed wire, on Jamestown Island in Narragansett Bay, America is working on a project as revolutionary in its concept as the atomic bomb. Marked "top secret" and zealously guarded, it is a co-operative achievement with the Departments of State, War, Justice and Navy uniting to conduct the first test of its kind in history, a social experiment so new and complex it is outside the scope of international law.

The ingredients are human beings, German prisoners of war who volunteered for the undertaking. Germans are being educated to re-educate Germany along the lines of democracy and truth.

Today, for the first time, the world is allowed a glimpse of this secret project, begun Dec. 1, 1944.

Some 18,362 German prisoners were examined, from more than 350,000 in this country, as potential candidates to be employed by the American government to help rule Germany in its zone of occupation. Of these, only 2751 were finally selected.

Lie detectors, incessant questioning, delving into backgrounds, checking of past records, all were employed, if needed, to dig out the secret leanings in a man's character.

A mere handful were sent to a special school started in New York state. From there the school was transferred to Fort Kearney, R. I., in March, then transferred again in June to Fort Getty and Fort Wetherill in Jamestown, where it is now operating with 344 students.

A class of 171 prisoners left Sept. 8 and is now on its way overseas, to be turned over to the American Military Government running our part of Germany.

Each prisoner had to volunteer for the course and agree to all its conditions. No inducements were offered, and officers had to waive their special privileges under the terms of the Geneva convention. In the classrooms all are treated alike.

They are taught English, German history, American history and American Military Government based on international law. But principally, they are meeting democracy head on and learning to think along democratic lines.

At the school, pupils live the bleak life of prisoners-of-war. They are 90 to a barracks, double-bunked, and eat the adequate prisoner-of-war fare with few embellishments.

Their diet is healthful, with fruits and vegetables, but their meat is mostly canned ham, or liverwurst, or pigs' feet; never beef. Also they never have butter, only oleo.

But a concession they deeply appreciate is the permission to buy cigarets (no popular brands) in the canteens, and a bottle of beer per day per man.

In the classroom each man is called "Mr.," and from the two classes watched in action by the press delegation, allowed on the post for the first time, it is clear that all are desperately serious and mindful of the dangers they may meet when they return to occupy responsible posts in the reconstructed civil administration of our zone in Germany.

Gen. Eisenhower has asked for from 2000 to 5000 more of them to police Germany. So a special school was set up at Wetherill where the same subjects are taught, with police instruction.

Most of the police instructors were borrowed by the Army from cities or states, and teach in civilian clothing or their own police uniforms. They range from a patrolman on a beat to the head of a large police academy.

Heads of the camps such as Lt. Col. Alpheus W. Smith, commandant of the school center; Maj. Kenneth Kolster, director of the police school, and Maj. John M. Moore, post commander, summed up for the press the vital necessity that the school should succeed.

"If we don't," said Maj. Kolster, "we will find our sons getting killed in Germany once more."

Howard Mumford Jones, distinguished Harvard professor, who wrote most of the books for the courses, gave the commencement address to the first class leaving for Germany.

Now, America is giving these men the torch. If they succeed in carrying it amongst the hate stirring in Germany, the greatest experiment in history will have succeeded.

Malden Cereus Has Big Night

After 15 years of tender care—during which it did not put out a blossom—a night blooming cereus in the home of Mrs. Joseph Keniston, Eastern ave., Malden, went to town last night and set the neighborhood agog.

"It began to come out at 7:30," Mrs. Keniston related today. "It's my mother's plant. She and my father were at the movies. I hurried down to the theater and got them. We invited the neighbors in and watched it. It was fully out at 9 o'clock. After our guests left and my parents went to bed I stayed up alone until 11 o'clock just watching it."

According to horticulturists, this long-time between-blossoms plant usually reaches the hour of midnight or thereabouts for its moments of glory, then folds for another 10 or 15 years, smugly dignified in its title of splendiferous grandiflorus. It is the most reserved of the cacti.

Miss Graves telephoned police immediately and told them it took place in Wilson's bedroom when he tried to wrest a revolver from her.

Baressi in Hospital Names Trolia 'Killer'

Taken to City Hospital under police guard, Joseph "Jo Jo" Trolia, 23, of Greenwich st., Dorchester, was identified today by Joseph Baressi, ex-convict and boxer, as the man who shot and critically wounded him in an East Boston cafe on Sept. 4.

Trolia, captured in his pajamas yesterday as he attempted to flee when police surrounded a house in West Cedar st., Beacon Hill, maintained a stolid silence when Baressi "fingered" him to the police and referred to him continually as "The Killer."

"Jo Jo" maintained silence during arraignment that followed in East Boston district court, save to answer "not guilty" to a charge of assault with intent to murder. Judge Charles Brown continued the case to Oct. 5 and fixed bail at $50,000.

Arraigned at the same time were Elaine Bendeky, 26, of West Cedar st., Beacon Hill, and Guy Rindini, 28, of Shirley st., Roxbury, found with Trolia in the police raid. Both pleaded not guilty to being accessories after the fact of the Baressi shooting and were held in $10,000 each.

But the real drama all came earlier at City Hospital.

Baressi, still in serious condition, declared he was shot by Trolia after the pair had become involved in an argument in the cafe.

When Trolia was taken to the bedside and Lt. James V. Crowley asked Baressi if he knew him, the wounded man replied affirmatively and said:

"What does 'The Killer' have to say?"

Trolia was silent and Crowley asked Baressi what happened.

"We were standing at the bar and we had an argument," Baressi said. "He said he'd kill me. I felt something was up. There were others there and I didn't like the looks of the setup. I tried to go out in the kitchen and then it happened. I was shot in the back."

"What do you say now?" Lt. Crowley asked Trolia.

"What can I say?" he countered.

Baressi repeatedly asked during the meeting, "Why did you do it?"

Lt. Crowley repeated the question to Trolia, but the man remained silent.

In his story, the wounded ex-convict declared he had been booted repeatedly as he lay wounded in the cafe. When asked by whom, Baressi replied, pointing to Trolia, "By that guy there, 'Two-Gun.'" He referred to his alleged assailant as both "Two-Gun" and "Jo-Jo."

When the interview was over, Crowley asked the prisoner if he understood that Baressi had accused him of the shooting. Trolia then made one of his few comments, "Yes, I heard him."

Chief Defies Ouster, 2 in Mansfield Post

MANSFIELD, Sept. 21—Town Manager James Shurtleff suspended Police Chief John Haines last night and asked for his badge, which the chief handed over.

But Haines had another badge at home. He pinned it on this morning and went right to work again as chief.

This gave the town two chiefs, for Shurtleff had appointed Patrolman Lawrence Barrows acting chief and the selectmen, at an emergency meeting last night, had given the town manager a vote of confidence.

Shurtleff said today the suspension was a climax to "two years of unpleasantness," but would not elaborate. He said:

"I acted under Chapter 31, Section 42A, of the Civil Service laws, which requires me to give Haines in writing, within 24 hours, the reasons for his suspension."

Asked if the selectmen had been unanimous in their vote of confidence, Chairman Everett Grant said: "There was no dissenting vote."

The two chiefs had only one clash today. Shurtleff said Barrows told him Haines had refused to turn over the keys to the police cruiser, which Barrows wanted to use in guarding a local payroll.

Haines countered:

"Patrolman Barrows left written orders on the desk last night for the cruiser to be delivered at his home. The cruiser is not in the habit of being left at patrolmen's homes. I'm giving the orders here, so I countermanded that one. Minor patrolmen are not giving orders."

He attributed the entire incident to politics and dissatisfaction among politicians because he was under Civil Service.

City Manager Shurtleff's office and that of the police chief are both in the Town Hall, but Shurtleff said he had not seen Haines this morning. Barrows was most certainly acting chief, Shurtleff said.

On the question whether Haines could legally make an arrest under his present status, the town manager said: "I'm afraid it would be too bad for him if he did."

Haines didn't think it would be too bad for him. "I'm the only chief in office," he said. "I have recived nothing in writing to the contrary."

In accordance with instructions from the town manager, Barrows showed up at the chief's office this morning, prepared to take over. Haines moved in. Barrows moved out.

"He told me he was going to handle the outside," said Haines.

The next regular meeting of the five-man board of selectmen will be Tuesday. Chairman Grant said he did not expect to call a special session to settle the two-chief problem.

Meanwhile the two patrolmen who constitute the rest of the force are using all the diplomacy possible in the matter of accepting orders from whoever really is the head man.

Tops in Jingling

NEW YORK, Sept. 21 (AP)—The nation's individual consumers—principal market for the products of postwar industry—are jingling nearly $140,000,000,000 in their pockets.

This vast buying power admittedly could loose an unprecedented spending spree and start a wild spiral of inflation, but this depends largely on the speed with which it is spent.

Factors acting as a brake on runaway spending are unemployment and increasing tendency of individuals to build up and retain most-ogy savings.

Belmont Burial Ban Voided by Court

An arbitrary ruling by officials of the town of Belmont went by the board today when Judge Francis J. Good held there was no reason why a person cannot be buried in Belmont just because he or she did not reside there.

The decision came in favor of Mrs. Laura F. Lalley, who sought in a bill of equity in Middlesex Superior Court to arrange for the burial of her sister-in-law, Miss Lucy E. Lalley of Allston, in a Belmont cemetery lot that the family bought 25 years ago.

Burial services had been held up nearly a month awaiting decision in the case. During that time, the body has been in a temporary vault in West Roxbury.

The Lalley action was brought both against the town of Belmont and the Belmont Board of Cemetery Commissioners. Judge Good, in granting the petition, ordered both not to interfere with the burial.

Commissioners had pleaded it was a town ruling, that the town was shkort of cemetery space and already was seeking burial lots elsewhere. They said to be buried in the town a person must die there.

"Records of the board shown in court indicate others than residents now rest in Belmont Cemetery," Judge Good said. "Records bear out that nonresidents are buried there and the court so finds."

Probers Won't Call Son Elliott

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 (AP)—Democrats on the House Ways and Means Committee voted down today a proposal to question Elliott Roosevelt personally about his business affairs.

Rep. Knutson (R.), Minn., ranking minority member, told reporters the 10 Republicans voted for his motion to summon all the principals for cross-examination. Democrats voted against it.

Spilled Tar Starts $200 Somerville Fire

An overturned tar kettle brought a brief blaze today on the roof of a 50-apartment, four-story block in Day st., West Somerville, but firemen had it doused almost before occupants were aware of the danger. Officials estimated damage at less than $200—and workmen continued their job of retarring the roof.

Souvenir Ash Tray Really Booby Trap

NORTH ADAMS, Sept. 21—In response to a warning by the Navy Department to have all innocent-looking war arms souvenirs examined by a ballistics expert, Thomas R. Ellis of North st., took an ash tray made from a 3-inch shell to police headquarters.

1195 Vets, 44 From N. E., Land With Pup Mascot

With seven troop carrier squadrons on board, the SS Cranston Victory docked at Commonwealth Pier today to debark 1195 veterans from the European theater, 44 of them from New England.

The vessel, which had the everpresent smuggled mascot, was first of three arriving here today. Expected later at the Army Base were the SS Samuel Adams and the William F. Cody.

"Top-Hat," a pint sized black and white Belgian fox terrier, was today's addition to the mascot brigade.

The pup, slipp ed aboard at Le Havre in the pocket of Sgt. James Deritis of Hazelton, Pa., is only eight weeks old and just a good pocketful, but his owner is sure he'll grow.

Many of the returnees saw action in the air over Normandy on D-Day and later.

One was Capt. Anthony W. Zaitz, 27, of Second st., Chelsea, substitute teacher at Chelsea High School before joining the service nearly four years ago.

"I was a lead ship observer on D-Day, and we had been told we wouldn't get much flak," the captain said. "But they were wrong. the Anti-aircraft almost tore us apart just as we reached the drop-zone behind the enemy lines. All I want to do now is go to Boston University and get a master's degree in English."

Sgt. Walter Coppenrath of Clinton, who has 104 points, didn't have much to say about his exploits. "Say, the toughest part of the whole mess was sweating out this trip home," he commented.

Swims in Tokyo Bay, But It Wasn't Fun

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Sept. 21 (AP)—Francis X. Zimmerman, reportedly the first American sailor to go "swimming" in Tokyo Bay, didn't mean to be, he wrote home.

The youth fell out of a small boat. The ship's doctor had him given a good washing, 'inside and out," doused with disinfectants, and placed under observation because of pollution in the bay's waters, Zimmerman related.

Three Weeks Left To Mail Buddy Gifts

With only three weeks left, readers of the Boston Record-American and Sunday Advertiser are urged to write in promptly if they wish to make a Christmas gift to a serviceman who won't be back from overseas.

Hundreds of generous readers throughout New England already have written in for the label necessary to send a Christmas package to some lonely soldier, sailor or Marine.

But you must hurry. Oct. 15 is the absolute deadline for mailing packages overseas in time for Christmas.

This is the sentiment of an East Boston girl, typical of the letters of many others. She writes:

"I was reading your paper tonight and think it's wonderful to know, although the war is over, that our boys overseas still aren't forgotten at Christmas time.

"I have a lot to be grateful for, as my brother who has been fighting in Europe for two years is now on his way home. I'm sure if he was to remain there for Christmas he'd be longing for someone to remember him. In return, I'd like to send a gift box to a serviceman so he'll have a white Christmas."

A year ago, readers of these newspapers sent 20,000 Christmas boxes to men overseas. They went directly, but this year, because so many men may come home at any time, a different plan was struck upon.

Readers are asked to fill out the accompanying blank. In return, they will get a label to be pasted on a Christmas box. This label will bear the name of a chaplain at a port, base or occupied area, and he will distribute all packages he receives.

The label bears the name and address of the sender so that the recipient can thank you by letter.

4 Dead, 23 Hurt In Bus Crash Near Pittsfield

NEW LEBANON CENTER, N. Y., Sept. 21 (AP)—Authorities sought today to identify four bodies burned beyond recognition when an Albany-Pittsfield, Mass., bus was wrecked near the Massachusetts-New York State line last night.

Twenty-three others were injured, four critically, when the vehicle struck the side of a bridge, swerved into a ditch and burst into flames.

State police said a relative identified one of the bodies as that of Mrs. Mary Axton, of Chicopee Falls, Mass.

Mary Louise Hansen, of Auburn, R. I., reported by her parents to be a passenger on the bus, was not among the injured, state police said.

Critically injured were Ralph Volk, Pittsfield; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Del Rossi, Gardner, Mass., and Jane Jones, Syracuse, N. Y.

Officials of the interstate bus lines said the accident apparently was caused by an explosion within the bus.

Harold Gosgrove, 25, of Springfield, Mass., driver of the bus, himself injured, had to be restrained from entering the burning vehicle in an attempt to rescue the trapped victims.

Chelsea Hunts Mutt, Jeff-Pair

Vowing to end a wave of hold-up terrorism Mayor Bernard L. Sullivan of Chelsea today called on Police Chief Charles M. Finn for speedy capture of the "Mutt and Jeff" bandits, whose latest in a long string of robberies netted them $2350 at the Independent Cridit Union offices.

The mayor conferred with Chief Finn, Capt. Cornelius Duggan and Insp. John J. Kirby and issued an appeal for public cooperation in tracking down the two gunmen, one large and the other small.

"I know we need more men in the police department," the mayor said. "And we're going to get them even if I have to again mobilize the auxiliary police. The public has got to help out, too."

The mayor said he knew there had been a number of holdups in both Chelsea and Revere that weren't reported because of the fear of reprisal. He said he was certain some victims recognized the two men.

In the latest raid "Mutt and Jeff" dropped into the credit union's offices in Washington st. with drawn guns, even as the directors met.

They took $2350 from Harry Segal, 45, a bookkeeper, and Horry Golder, 45, and vanished without the directors, sitting in a soundproof room a few feet away, knowing what was going on.

The holdup was the fourth in Chelsea since Saturday in which the tall and short pair have been principals.

MacArthur Smear — By Reds Probed

By DAVID SENTNER
Boston Evening American Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21—William Z. Foster and other Red leaders will be quizzed on the current smear campaign being waged by the Communists against Gen. MacArthur when they are called as witnesses next Wednesday before the House committee on un-American activities probing the subversive aims of the reorganized Communist party.

In a Come-the-Revolution revival meeting at Madison Square Garden last Tuesday, the name of Gen. MacArthur was booed and hissed by a gathering of Communists.

Rep. Rankin (D.) of Mississippi, member of the House committee, pointed out that the Communist Daily Worker and other left wing periodicals were attacking MacArthur for his statement to the effect that within six months he would probably need not more than 200,000 men in Japan, and twisting the general's remarks to give an opposite effect to what was intended.

"If the American people have to go to the Communist press to get somebody to advise Gen. MacArthur, then we are in a terrible fix," said Rankin.

"I note that President Truman agrees with Gen. MacArthur, and I believe that 90 per cent of the American people will agree with him when they read his full statement and understand the situation."

Meanwhile, Rep. Reed (R.) of New York inquired of his colleagues in Congress if Gen. MacArthur was going to suffer the same fate as Billy Mitchell, the famous air general who publicly warned the nation of the importance of air power as a military weapon and was courtmartialed as a result.

Gen. Mitchell also revealed the neglect of the air service in Hawaii and the short-sighted estimate of the Japanese fighting qualities by both the Army and Navy.

"The old guillotine blade which worked so well on Billy Mitchell, following his conviction by a court martial, has been repaired and sharpened," said Rep. Rankin.

Rupertus Dips At Fore River

Named in honor of a marine general, the USS Rupertus, 2200-ton destroyer, was launched today at Fore River shipyard.

The widow of Maj. Gen. William H. Rupertus, who won the Navy Cross for extraordinary heroism in the Solomon Islands, christened the vessel, one of the largest destroyers in the Navy.

The Rupertus, a sister ship of the USS Joseph P. Kennedy, Jr., will carry a plaque attesting the war bond purchasers of citizens of Lowell in the Seventh War Loan which were equivalent to the cost of the ship.

Jury Gets Epes Case Without Defense Plea

COLUMBIA, S. C., Sept. 21 (AP)—The case of Lt. Samuel C. Epes, charged with killing his wife with an overdose of sedative, will go to the jury without defense testimony.

Atty. Edgar A. Brown announced this, after Judge A. L. Gaston today overruled a motion for a directed verdict of acquittal.

The State contends Epes killed his frail schoolteacher wife for love of another woman.

It rested its case in the fifth day of trial. Epes admitted burying his wife in a foxhole grave but denied killing her. He attributed the death of his wife to an overdose of self-administered sedative tablets.

The State was unable to bring here under subpoena the "other woman" in the case, blonde Nelson Kingsland of Lake Charles, La., but put in evidence Epes' correspondence with her.

Epes met Miss Kingsland while he was on maneuvers in Louisiana in 1944. The State, through letters and testimony, has sought to show they spent many weekends together.

Bay State Has 8 New Polio Cases

Eight new cases of polio, including three in Boston, were reported in the State today by Dr. Vlado A. Getting, State health commissioner.

He said one each was reported from Barnstable, Belmont, Newton, Winthrop and Dalton. The new cases brought the month's total to 126 compared with 99 during September, 1944.

The overall total for the year is 303, he said. During 1944 there were 436 cases reported in the State.

NEW REGIME IN KOREA

MOSCOW, Sept. 21 (AP)—A Tass dispatch from Seisin, Korea, said today a local municipal administration had been established there under Tsoi Dun-Hun, former Korean school teacher.

Houghton Bldg. Leased to U. S.

Mayor Kerrigan announced today the city of Boston had leased the Houghton Dutton building to the federal government to be occupied by the all-New England insurance offices of the U. S. Veterans' Administration.

The government will pay the city $75,000 annual rental for five years and then may renew the lease for two more years at $100,000 yearly. At the end of that time the lease may be renewed for three years at $150,000 annual rental.

The mayor said the federal government would meet all costs of renovation, maintenance and personnel.

As a result, he said, he would be able to withdraw the $300,000 loan order he had submitted to the City Council last Sept. 10 for funds to renovate the building. This never had been passed.

He also stated the opening of the offices would provide employment for 2100 men and women, most of them from Boston.

Ban on GI Wedding German Is Still On

By DANIEL DE LUCE

BERLIN, Sept. 21 (AP)—The United States Group Control Council said today "there is no intention" of permitting marriages among occupation forces and Germans, or billeting troops in German homes in the American zone.

The American military government set forth its position in a statement of yesterday's action by the Allied Control Council relaxing non-fraternization restrictions to permit these two privileges at the discretion of zone commands.

"In conformity with an agreement reached at the Thursday meeting of the Allied Control Council appropriate instructions are bing issued in the American zone relaxing non-fraternization regulations," said the statement, issued at U. S. Control Council headquarters.

"Under this agreement, all restrictions against fraternization were lifted except the billeting of troops in German homes and the marriage of soldiers and German nationals.

"While zone commanders are authorized to permit billeting in German homes and marriages of soldiers and German nationals, there is no intention to grant such privileges in the American zone," the statement said.

Yesterday's announcement by the Allied council also had said troops might visit in German homes and have normal social relations with Germans, without specific permission from commanders.

U. S. troops have been forbidden to enter German homes.

Boston's September salvage drive drew to a close today as city trucks canvassed homes and stores in Ward 19, Jamaica Plain; Ward 20, West Roxbury and Roslindale, and Wards 21 and 22, Allston and Brighton.

This week's collection of tin cans was the last scheduled by the salvage committee, but householders are urged to continue saving waste paper. Monthly collections of waste paper will be made for the remainder of the year.

STABBED IN THE BACK BY ARTHRITIS

NOW is the time of the year when Arthritis is on the loose, stabbing victim after victim with its deadly dagger of pain. If you are one of these unfortunate people, here is important information for you to know. Many people suffering from nagging arthritis pains in back, knees, shoulders and hands, never suspect that these pains may be substantially caused, in some cases, by excessive acid wastes within the body.

As a dietary aid to assist the body's faster neutralization and elimination of these excessive acid wastes from tissues and joints, which in turn may tend to bring speedier pain relief to this extent, Vig-Ore Sodeom Tablets were devised by a well-known food nutritionist. Vig-Ore Sodeom Tablets contain food sodium and food iodine, two minerals of nutritional value which may prove to be helpful to many arthritis sufferers. Vig-Ore Sodeom Tablets are free from all harmful Chemical drugs. They positively do not contain injurious ingredients of any kind.

CUT OUT THIS ADVERTISEMENT and present it with $1.95 at any Nature Food Centres Store to get your Vig-Ore Sodeom Tablets. YOUTH TURNS TO GOD

IN THIS retrogressive age of godliness it is heartening to be able to comment on an event pleasing to our Saviour and Redeemer.

The event is the Solemn Holy Hour for young people at Boston College next Sunday.

On that glorious occasion many thousands of high school age and over will be gathered at the feet of the Eucharistic Lord.

They will thank Him for the blessings they have received.

They will ask Him to solace and sustain them all their lives.

Archbishop Cushing will preside and Auxiliary Bishop Kelleher will give the Benediction.

Both prelates have long been known for their interest in youth and young people will feel at home with them.

WE AMERICANS are too prone to ignore religious ceremonies and observances.

We have an abundance of time for football, boxing, baseball and other competitive sports.

We invest millions of dollars in books and literature that are frequently vile and obscene.

We patronize theatrical performances and motion pictures whose authors and producers seem to find satanic delight in contradicting Christ's teachings and human experience.

We exult in war, revenge and slaughter, completely and conveniently forgetting the Fifth Commandment.

We have made drinking and debauchery a great and profitable industry with the government itself a silent or active partner.

But, for some never satisfactorily explained reason, too many persons cannot find ten minutes a day or an hour a week to give to God.

THIS SOLEMN Holy Hour, attended by thousands in Boston and reverently watched by other thousands elsewhere, should be the dawn of the better and happier era.

Young people who worship God in this inspiring manner once can do so again and all the time.

And, profiting by the children's good example, so also can fathers and mothers.

WE LOOK FOR A WAY TO PREVENT ANOTHER WAR WHICH WILL SURELY BE WORSE THAN THE ONE THAT HAS DEVASTATED MUCH OF THE WORLD AND SET BACK THE CLOCK OF PROGRESS A HUNDRED YEARS OR MORE. IN GOD—AND IN HIM ONLY—WILL WE FIND IT.

THE WORK of the Catholic Youth Organization in the Archdiocese of Boston is truly a model for the nation.

It provides for the training of young people in the spiritual life that will be theirs for eternity; in the social life that will make them valuable and useful members of the community; and in the recreational element that contributes to the attainment of both.

It brings religion and righteousness into the daily lives of girls and boys and effectively combats and drives out the influences that have made juvenile delinquency a formidable problem throughout the country.

By it, as THE PILOT, official organ of the Archdiocese, has said, "A bewildered, war-weary world will be encouraged to lift its head to the skies and survey the wider and brighter horizons that are the inevitable boundaries of ambitious youth. These young men and women are the hope of tomorrow; they will never disappoint us as long as they remain close to the Altar of God, Who giveth joy to youth."

ABOUT 50,000 British girls married U. S. servicemen during the war period. Twenty per cent of these girls are now mothers. It must be an event of considerable interest to the young women of a small United States town when the British wife of a local boy arrives to make her home there.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Copyright, 1945, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—In the absence of any public statement by Elliott Roosevelt and in view of his failure to make a statement when he was invited to do so, for his side of the story of his loan of $200,000 from John Hartford and its eventual settlement for $4000 of Jesse Jones' money, the public thus far has to rely on press association reports from Washington.

Westbrook Pegler

These usually are reliable, although in the present case they are patchy. The fault here is Elliott's and the choice is his own because he surely knows that if he made a full public statement it would be published faithfully within reasonable length, and faithful summarized if beyond such length.

According to Elliott's own version, as obtained from members of the House Ways and Means Committee who had studied a Treasury report based on an official investigation, his father did discuss the loan by long distance with Hartford before it was made.

Still according to that version, his father later sent him to Jesse Jones, then Secretary of Commerce in the Roosevelt Cabinet, for suggestions as to how he might settle his debts.

Further, according to this source, Elliott did not know until he read the news in the papers that Mr. Jones had picked up Hartford's claim for $4000 or that he had settled other obligations for trifling amounts.

We find in these reports no mention of the $25,000 loan which Charles Harwood, governor of the Virgin Islands by appointment of the late President, says he made to Elliott's radio network, in settlement of which Harwood says Jones tried to persuade him to accept $500 or $1000."

* * *

ELLIOTT'S SOLE statement in defense of his father's honor thus far revealed is a denial that the long distance conversation between the President and Hartford constituted promotion or assistance of his "personal business affairs."

"Any statement that he ever did so is a deliberate, infamous lie," Elliott said in a general denial issued from the office of Randolph Paul, his lawyer, who was general counsel to the Treasury under President Roosevelt.

Hartford deducted $196,000 as a bad debt in his tax return and there has been no representation that Elliott ever listed the $200,000, plus the $4000 advanced on his behalf by Jones, as income or gifts and paid a tax on it.

Further indication that President Roosevelt assisted Elliott in his "private, personal affairs" consists in other Washington dispatches, again relying on members of the ways and means committee, which report that the President personally sent to Ruth Googins Roosevelt, Elliott's wife at that time, stock in Elliott's company which had been left with Hartford as collateral and surrendered by Hartford to Jones in the settlement.

Elliott may create in some minds a doubt that he, personally, knew of the settlement. But this development strengthens the suspicion that his father not only hit upon a way to relieve his son of a debt of money, but selected someone to pay the cost and, finally, entered the transaction himself in forwarding the redeemed stock.

*

AS TO the original negotiations with Hartford in March, 1939, Elliott would have it that the consultation with his father by phone proved that Mr. Roosevelt refused to intervene one way or another.

It is not amiss, however, to consider what might have been Mr. Hartford's frame of mind when he was asked by a stranger, then 29, to lend him $200,000 on allegedly "unbankable" security.

Hartford's grocery business was under fire from the Roosevelt Administration, and he might reasonably have suspected that here was an invitation to ingratiate himself and terminate a campaign which he may have regarded as political and ideological persecution.

If the President said, as he is reported to have said to Hartford, "You can't lose," Hartford could not be blamed for interpreting this remark to mean that even though he might lose the loan his gain in relief from persecution would show a net profit in the costs of litigation and other benefits to his legitimate business, and Franklin D. Roosevelt's bitterest defenders have never contended that he was a naive man who would not have calculated the thoughts of Mr. Hartford in this crisis.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 21—Myrna Loy, done up in a cute trick hat (all feathers), took herself over to RKO to sign for Harriet Parsons' next picture, "Come Share My Love."

It's the Kay Swift story originally titled, "Who Could Ask for Anything More?" The plot concerns a woman song writer who deserts Tin Pan Alley for married life on a ranch. This picture gets Myrna off on the first of three she will make for RKO and starts some time early in January.

The team of H. Parsons and Executive Producer Jack Cross turned out the highly enchanting "Enchanted Cottage," so Myrna steps off in good production hands. She looks wonderful these days, very slender, chic and happy—particularly when Capt. Gene Markey is around, which is constantly.

ACTORS KICK to high heaven about being "typed," but Fritz Lang is the first director I know of to squawk about being in a rut. He's picked up quite a reputation for megaphoning murder mysteries—and good ones like "Woman in the Window." But he is tired of the "whodunits" and has notified his agent that he would like either a bedroom farce or a Western. Funny part of it is that several years ago he was almost typed as a director of Westerns after making "The Return of Frank James" and "Western Union" for 20th.

AFTER MONTHS of cooling his heels waiting for an assignment at M-G-M, Van Heflin has been loaned to Hal Wallis for "Love Lies Bleeding," the thriller, with Barbara Stanwyck. It's still one of the local puzzles just why the home studio didn't rush Van into something the minute he got out of service. But the role with Barbara is really what he has been looking for. He didn't want straight romantic leads and this is more along the lines of Dick Powell in "Murder, My Sweet." Van won an Oscar for himself as the charming alcoholic in "Johnny Eager," and maybe this is another chance at one. Lewis Milestone directs.

WALT DISNEY wants Burl Ives, the rotund troubadour, to appear in and sing all the folk songs in Walt's cartoon version of Sterling North's book, "Midnight and Jeremiah"—all about Southern mountaineers. Ives was in a long huddle with Disney today, making sure that his acting role would be as important as the musical numbers. Ives has the itch to emote as well as carol. Well, Disney has Edwin Justus Mayer, one of Hollywoods highest priced writers, working on the script, so that should take care of the dramatics.

THE TALK of the town still is the warm, sincere feeling that surrounded everything about the Shirley Temple-John Agar wedding. Sure, there was fanfare and terrific publicity coverage. But there wasn't a single press representative on hand who was not known to Shirley or to the Temple family. No one was invited because he, or she, "should" have been invited. That hasn't always been true. But then, few Hollywood marriages have ever started out with such sincere wishes and a feeling on everyone's part that this is a marriage that will last.

A year ago my doctor said I might make one or two more pictures—and I have made them. Now I want a rest and time to turn my attention to other things—perhaps producing." Broadway

By Dorothy Kilgallen

Distributed by King Features Synd., Inc.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—Laurette Taylor, star of "The Glass Menagerie" and the most-acclaimed actress of the Broadway year, is holding hands with Ginger O'Neill, the property man. It's not exactly a romance, however—you might call it caution. Backstage at the Playhouse it's so dark Ginger has to hold Laurette's hand to lead her offstage when she finishes a scene. She says she does so much roaming around in the gloom she feels like a zombie. (The creature, not the beverage.)

Laurette Taylor

"The Glass Menagerie" has, they say, the darkest backstage in town, although the show possesses enough lighting equipment for three musicals. And there are only four actors in the cast, but it takes three stage managers to attend to the complicated details of light cues, music cues and performers' cues. The four musicians who play the delicately fashioned mood music are hemmed in by four walls almost as high as the scenery, and have never seen the play. They learned how the music was to be done by listening to records made during the run in Chicago.

As is usual when a hit show settles down for a long and unworried existence, the members of the cast have begun to add cozy touches to their normally stark dressing rooms. Eddie Dowling recently installed a glittering glass electric coffeemaker in his coop. He discovered that sending Assistant Stage Manager Mary Jean Copeland out to the drugstore four or five times during each performance was interfering with her bell-ringing chores. Also it's nicer without the flavor of cardboard.

★ ★ ★

OVER AT the Cort Theater, where "A Bell for Adano" is playing, Dressing Room Row frequently takes on the aspect of an artists' colony, for at least five members of the cast have considerable talent for painting and drawing, and every night, before, during and after the performance, there is sure to be someone busily working at an easel.

J. Scott Smart, who portrays one of the cartdrivers (the one with the largest circumference), says he uses greasepaint for the caricatures which literally cover the walls of his tiny dressing room. Mario Badolati, who plays Zito, does portraits in oils; practically every member of the company has posed for him since opening night. Albert Raymo, who enacts the role of the belligerent cartdriver, specializes in pastels.

Raymo also is co-proprietor of a restaurant called The Adano Cafe, Neapolitan Kitchen, just across the street from the Cort, which gives him much in common with Tito Vuolo.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21—Mr. Al Nader, the well-known hotel man, has just returned from Bedford Springs, Pa., with what he deems to be a practical plan for reducing Japan's excess population.

"The plan, which you may call the Nader plan, if you wish to give me a well-deserved plug, is very uncomplex in scope and operation," said Mr. Nader. "Simply teach the Japanese to play poker."

Mrs. Nader went to the Pennsylvania resort a couple of months ago to take over management of the Bedford Springs Hotel. He looked forward to a pleasant season of lazy summer days and balmy nights. Being a gregarious soul, he also looked forward to mingling with the guests, who he assumed would all speak some form of American, a language which Mr. Nader has picked up surprisingly well.

But he had been on deck only a short while when the State Department ordered him to heave out his Anglo-Saxon guests to make room for Japanese.

The Japs, when they arrived with much polite hissing and costly luggage, turned out to be Nipponese diplomats from Europe, headed by Oshima, Jap ambassador to Berlin. The State Department explained they were to be quartered at the luxurious hostelry pending arrangements for shipping them the rest of the way back to Tokyo.

★ ★ ★

Mr. Nader asked how long that might be and the State Department replied it had no idea; or at least no idea it cared to communicate to Mr. Nader. At any event, the Japs are still there.

Mr. Nader, however, does not plan to return until the Japanese occupation is ended.

"But I am satisfied with my efforts there" he added, "I succeeded in knocking off one Jap although nothing has been said about giving me a medal or even a citation."

Mr. Nader said the State Department had hinted that some form of entertainment be provided for the distinguished guests.

"But the Japs did not seem to have much idea about how to have fun," he said. "They spent the evenings playing some fool card games which I could make no sense out of at all. So, one night, out of sheer generosity, I suggested they learn poker.

"They seemed quite interested and asked how it was played. I explained that a pair beats nothing; that two pairs beat one pair; three of a kind beat two pairs; a straight beats three of a kind; a flush a straight; a full house a flush; four of a kind a full house, and that a straight flush beats everything, including the carpets.

"I guess it must be the educator in me that made me do it," added Mr. Nader. "I never could abide ignorance."

★ ★ ★

THE JAPANESE took surprising well to the scientific pastime, although they had some trouble remembering the sequence of values. One evening they got into a very tight game.

One of the players drew two cards; another one. After a few raises all but these two dropped out.

"The fellow who drew only one card was Oshima's personal chef," said Mr. Nader. "I knew he had filled something because he practically sizzled; you could almost see smoke coming out of his head.

"The two-card drawer appeared a bit puzzled but he kept raising back, although he did not seem too happy about it. Oshima's chef, on the other hand, was upping like mad.

"Finally, with a couple of hundred bucks in the pot, the two-card Jap called. With a flourish, Oshima's chef laid down his hand. He had a straight, queen high.

"He was beaming all over when the other Jap laid down. He had a full house!

"Oshima's chef started to rake in the dough, but I halted him. I explained that the other fellow had won."

Mr. Nader paused—and I asked what happened then.

"Nothing much," said Mr. Nader. "Oshima's chef dropped dead!"

★ ★ ★

MRS. NADER, incidentally, spent most of the summer at her job with the War Production Board. She resigned recently, she explained, because there wasn't enough work to go around.

"There were only two of us in my division when it was created," she said, "and even then we didn't have enough to keep us occupied. But they kept adding employes until there were eight."

"Maybe they were needed," suggested Mr. Nader.

"If they were," retorted his little woman, "I will eat them."

"There you go," snorted Mr. Nader. "You are supposed to be on a diet—and now you want to go eating bureaucrats!"

★ ★ ★

SEN. JOHN H. OVERTON of Louisiana should be more careful about his sensational outbursts. Some day the strain is going to prove too severe for his colleagues.

The other day he gave them a fearful shock.

"Now," he thundered, "the truth can be told about dehydrated sweet potatoes!"

Boston After Dark

NEWTON L. SMITH, general manager of the Copley Plaza Hotel, is being succeeded by Maurice Lawler, manager of the Hotel Sheraton in Worcester . . . Mr. Smith goes to Philadelphia to "plan and direct the construction of an addition to the Sheraton Hotel in Philadelphia" . . . The Plaza's remodeled and redecorated Oval Room is presenting as good a floor show as Boston has had in years, in the opinion of this corner.

★ ★ ★

GAY AND at the same time dignified, the new Oval Room itself is a delight . . . The elevated dance floor has been lowered so that couples now do not have to be piped over the side . . . The long table which once faced the orchestra and the entertainers—at which customers were seated after the fashion of a church picnic or the head table of a banquet—is no more.

★ ★ ★

THE RINGSIDE now has three sides of tables, all set for two persons . . . Accidental though this arrangement may have been, it is something which other supper rooms and night clubs could copy to advantage . . . The deuces (as tables a deux are known to the trade) are not so cluttered with persons as to obscure the view of those sitting away from the immediate ringside.

★ ★ ★

ENTERTAINERS will love the arrangement, too, because it is an open secret of the business that hecklers and drunks seldom originate at tables which are set for two persons only. This species derives almost invariably from the large groups—where there always is one "life of the party" who fancies himself or herself as a wit . . . There is either that type or an alcoholic who simply had to be invited because he was a brother-in-law of the boss' best customer's wife's nephew, or because he was a rich drunk, and could be depended upon to catch the check in exchange for human companionship . . . Yes, those tables for two against the dance floor represent something new that has been added which is all to the good.

★ ★ ★

BUT THE OVAL ROOM'S floor show! . . . It is superb, and reminiscent of the nice way of doing things inaugurated seasons ago by Ed Wyner of the Ritz-Carlton . . . In fact, the idea of the Plaza's current show sprung from Mr. Wyner, who operates the luxurious Ritz-Carlton . . . It was he who first induced Monte Proser to troupe a floorshow on the road from the Copacabana in Manhattan . . . Mr. Wyner wouldn't give Mr. Proser any billing at that time, we recall . . . He theorized that the Ritz-Carlton's Roof itself was an attraction and any show the Ritz housed would be attended well.

★ ★ ★

THIS TIME, MR. PROSER gets due credit for the show at the Oval Room . . . It is advertised as "Monte Proser's Copacabana Revue starring Kitty Carlisle." . . . Miss Carlisle is lovely, including her spectacular and famous back (which she criss-crosses with drapes on the upper section in the gown we caught her in) . . . Her voice is on the verge of being operatic, and a marvelous instrument for prima donna stuff . . . In the rhythm tunes which a gal like Ethel Merman would "moider" quite effortlessly, Kitty is not quite so forte . . . But she is grand and glorious nonetheless.

★ ★ ★

LA CARLISLE'S best spasm is her rendition of the hits from "Carousel." Her "If I Loved You" is enchanting . . . Her medley of Carlisle-introduced songs includes "June in January," "Love in Bloom," and "Cocktails for Two." . . . Wonderful . . . Having used up the usual adjectives on Kitty, we capsule the balance of the show, to wit: Burt Easley, a magician, is the most inventive and entertaining of his dubious class; Jacqueline Fontaine and Norman Lawrence, who dance and sing, are intriguing youngsters with real talent; the six chorus girls are dreamboats.

★ ★ ★

LT. ALBERT JOSEPH SINOFSKY, U. S. INF., Boston College graduate, of Roxbury, and Miss Beebe Kramer, also of Roxbury, daughter of George Kramer, the Brookline motor dealer, are a late fall prospect for the marriage license bureau . . . Lt. Sinofsky returns after two and a half busy years in the European theater . . . He holds the Silver Star, Purple Heart and Presidential Citation . . . Mrs. Mildred Murray Fitzgerald of Belmont made her first appearance as a model since her recent welcome to the stork (who brought a boy) . . . She modelled at the fashion show Thursday in the Plaza . . . Stately Mildred, who has turned down six or seven offers for New York musicals, is as lovely as ever.

Belsen Surgical Horrors Told

By JOSEPH WILLICOMBE, JR.

LUENEBURG, Sept. 21 (INS)—Joseph Kramer, "Beast of Belsen," and his 47 co-defendants today heard another charge added to the long list of murder, torture and starvation already credited to them—that of using their prisoners for experimental "guinea pigs."

Sterilization of hundreds of women was brought about when the German medical officers at Belsen persisted in their efforts to perfect artifical insemination.

Many women tried suicide after undergoing the experiments which were performed before scores of doctors and leering SS guards.

This was part of the damning testimony of a Polish woman doctor who told of the execution of her mother, brother and 6-year-old son.

The full-rigged ship, built to train Danish merchant officers, was at Jacksonville, Fla., on a training cruise when the Nazis invaded Denmark in April, 1940.

Britain Cuts U. S. Buying in Half; Shy of Dollars

LONDON, Sept. 21 (AP)—London newspapers used bold headlines across front pages today to tell the public British buying from the United States would be cut in half.

The Daily Express, owned by Lord Beaverbrook, cited a British cabinet decision forced by an acute shortage of currency with which to buy from the "dollar area." Other papers quoted British officials in Washington.

The Daily Mail's headline said "Britain Now Cuts All U. S. Buying by Half. Nation Must Make Every Penny Count." A subhead told ration-weary Britons "We May Be Asked to Face Two More Years of Austerity."

The Mail's political corresoondent said "large, if not total, cuts in tobacco purchases are forecast. Severe cuts are to be made in imports of American cotton."

The first item stricken entirely from the purchase list, the Express said, was prefabricated houses.

appear before the congressional committee investigating Pearl Harbor.

"Certainly I would," he replied, "if there is any information I have which the committee wanted, although I have no information which is not available directly from government sources."

Dewey's friends said today he took the position during his campaign that: "I would rather be defeated for president than to risk damaging the war effort."

The Governor was approached by an Army colonel, representing Gen. Marshall, the day after he delivered his famous Oklahoma City speech, in which he belabored the Roosevelt administration for allegedly failure to prepare the nation for war.

The colonel flew to Tulsa with a letter from the chief of staff. The opening paragraph directed the Governor to stop reading the missive at that point unless he were willing to keep secret the remainder of the letter.

Gov. Dewey promptly stopped reading, turned the letter back to the colonel and said the material in the letter might already be in his possession from other sources and that a candidate for President could not make blind promises.

Later in the campaign, the same emissary brought another letter from Gen Marshall, which the Governor was permitted to read. It contained what he already knew, that the Jap code had been cracked.

Gen. Marshall added that our knowledge of the code was giving us great advantages, and that American lives would be saved if the Japs could be prevented from learning of our knowledge.

Gov. Dewey, not knowing whether the old code was still being used, or whether he was being sidetracked from an election winning issue, talked with National Chairman Herbert Brownell and Elliott Bell, his close advisers, and decided to go along with Gen. Marshall.

Although reasons of national security would not require the Governor to remain silent at this time, his friends pointed out that he hardly would make statements which might be interpreted as emphasizing a "pious" attitude on his part.

Gov. Dewey read a magazine article covering his knowledge of pre-PearlHarbor developments in Washington, but he told reporters:

"I would rather not comment at this time on the story."

Friends of the Governor said one of his great problems, in making up his mind to remain silent about Pearl Harbor, was his difficulty in convincing himself the Japs could be so "incredibly stupid" as to continue using a prewar code right up to the time of their defeat.

That is what Gen. Marshall certified to him during the campaign, however, and that is what he now believes.

Gov. Dewey, it is understood, has not placed any restrictions upon those of his friends and advisers who might desire to talk about the episode.

His attitude, however, is that it is not for him to do the talking

Brownell Says Dewey Could Have Won Race

NEW YORK, Sept. 21 (INS)—Republican National Chairman Herbert Brownell, Jr., said flatly today Gov. Thomas E. Dewey could have won the 1944 presidential elections if he had revealed "the colossal mal-administration that caused Pearl Harbor."

Brownell said the Republicans "intended to disclose the truth about Pearl Harbor insofar as we had been able to find out the facts which were being concealed by the New Deal administration."

"In my opinion Gov. Dewey acted with great patriotism and with a degree of courage unparalleled in American public life."

Dry Ice Quells Leominster Fire

LEOMINSTER, Sept. 21 (AP)

A chemistry teacher's suggestion dry ice be used to extinguish a fire in the Leominster High School coal supply was successful today.

Five hundred pounds of dry ice was packed in the coal pocket in the cellar yesterday on suggestion of Elmer J. Bucknell, chemistry department head.

Combination of low temperature of the ice—132 below zero—and carbon dioxide given off as it evaporated, smothered the fire.

Home Building Curbs Flayed

Bureaucratic refusal to remove restrictions is retarding large scale construction of homes, declared George C. Johnson, treasurer of Brooklyn, N. Y., Dime Savings Bank, today at the convention of Massachusetts Saving Banks officials at New Ocean House, Swampscott.

"Millions of young men returning from the war looking forward to home life won't be able to get one," Johnson said. "This is a tragedy and the blame should be placed on bureaucrats who refuse to remove restrictions on building."

He said controls on the price class of new homes is unnecessary, since every new home in any class adds to the total housing supply.

Veterans' Friend

By JAMES F. McENANEY

Gen. George Marshall has confirmed this column's exclusive news of the Army's plan for reduction of minimum points required for discharge.

One week ago we announced in advance the Army would within a few days announce further reductions in the point system.

Many more important announcements concerning the discharge of soldiers, especially married men, regardless of length of service, are expected within a fortnight, according to inside Washington information. Included also will be those in the upper-age brackets who lack, presently, sufficient points for separation from service.

Q—I am discharged from Army. Could you please give me names of some local electric shops willing to hire a veteran who could earn while learning the business. Am 19 years old and only went as far as 7th grade. Could go to night school while learning trade during day. J. O., Dorchester.

A—Suggest that you visit the City of Boston Veteran's Center, Houghton-Dutton Building, corner Tremont and Beacon sts., Boston. They have employment lists available for such trades. Also contact the Federal Employment Bureau, 9 Beacon st.

Q—Does the State of Tennessee pay a state bonus to veterans? P. H., Dorchester.

A—As far as I know they have not passed any bonus legislation. However, those who might be interested in what they are doing in other states regarding this matter, write to Secretary of State, State Capitol, of State interested in.

Q—My husband, overseas 18 months, has a total of 87 points. Could you please tell me if he will be home for Christmas or should I plan to send him a holiday package. He's with the 15th Air Force in Italy? J. C., Boston.

A—Such information is not available from official sources, but plans are being put into operation for return of high point men, similar to your husband's score, before Christmas if they can be possibly spared or replaced. The majority of the 15th Air Force overseas for more than a year are being returned as fast as possible. Suggest you hold package, possibilities are that you might be able to give it in person on Dec. 25.

Q—My husband is with the 26th Div. in Austria. He has 87 points. Can you tell me when he might be coming home, also whether I should send a package? "Wondering Wife," Everett.

A—There is no need wondering. The 26th Div. (complete) is sailing for the U. S. next month. I can tell you positively to hold the Christmas present and place it in his stocking Christmas Eve instead.

Q—Have you any information concerning Hq. Co., 23d Armored Bn? J. J. H., Somerville.

A—Wish I could tell you approximate date scheduled for return. Latest reports state should return before Jan. 1, 1946.

Editor's Note: For further information regarding returning units to the U. S. from Europe watch daily "The Boys Come Home," column published on another page of this newspaper.

Mrs. Craig Biddle Wins Divorce Decree

WEST KINGSTON, R. I., Sept 21 (AP)—Craig Biddle, 65, noted sports and scion of a prominent Philadelphia family, was divorced by his wife, Josephine Peet Biddle, in Washington County Superior Court Tuesday, it was learned from court records today. She charged extreme cruelty.

They were married in London June 18, 1926, while Biddle was playing on the American tennis team in the international matches at Wimbledon.

Warns Amateurs Of DDT Dangers

A warning to amateurs against haphazard use of DDT, the new and powerful insecticide, has been issued by H. L. Ramsey, superintendent of moth and insect control in the State Dept. of Conservation.

"Haphazard purchases and home mixing can easily result in a mixture strong enough to kill a horse when all you wanted was to get rid of mosquitoes," he said. "Its use by amateurs should be discouraged for the time being."

He urged the purchaser to find what prescribed strength is needed for the insect he wants to kill. Though he praised the Army's use of DDT in combatting malaria, he added:

"Not a mosquito remained alive. But nothing else lived through it either, no birds, bees, small mammals or rodents."

NEW YORK, Sept. 21 (INS)—Moses Koenigsberg, 67, veteran newspaperman and one-time president and general manager of King Features Syndicate and International News Service, died today at his home following a heart attack.

Gossip Costs Lives of 7 Mice

ELIN, Ill., Sept. 21 (AP)—It was squealed around a couple of weeks ago among a certain family of mice that Mrs. Clifton Washer's well-stocked pantry was a pushover for goodies.

Papa Mouse made the initial attack. He never came back home. Mrs. Washer's trap did its stuff. The next day a half-grown mouse met a similar fate. For four succeeding days the trap netted one young mouse a day.

Yesterday Mrs. Washer found another half-grown mouse. Hovering close to the trap was a full-grown mouse apparently the mother. She refused to be frightened away even with a broom.

Mrs. Washer's son, Bert, wrote finis to the strange mother love story.

Bert killed the female mouse with an air rifle.

Snake Chain, Neck Ribbon Feature Jewelry Opening

By JEANETTE SMITS

NEW YORK, Sept. 21 (INS)—Opulent necklaces, clips, brooches, earrings and rings, with the finest 18-carat gold, or platinum, serving as the setting for dazzling rubies, diamonds, sapphires and other gems are a feature of the season's outstanding showing of fine jewelry.

A wealth of graceful, brilliant, yet restrained designs was shown to the fashion press at the official opening of John Rubel's new salon at Saks Fifth Avenue. This salon will supplement the Rubel Shop on 5th ave. and complete Gem collections have been created for both.

Several exciting novelties have been created by John Rubel and his brother, originally of France, and celebrated on the continent as creators of the finest pieces for all the world-famous jewelers there.

The gold snake chain, which Rubel launched last season, is shown in a new version, with jeweled flowers between twists of the necklace. Another new type is the neck ribbon—a string of beads or length of gold with clips attached and fastening at either end. This neck ribbon is designed to be draped around the throat and attached to the neckline of the dress.

A single item which attracted complimentary attention was a gold vanity box, about four by six inches, on which was etched a ballet scene, with dancers in jeweled dresses set on in high relief.

Marooned 8 Months, 11 U. S. GIs in Greenland Saved

NARSARSSUAK, Greenland, Sept. 21 (INS)—Marooned eight and one-half months on Greenland's east coast, 11 U. S. soldiers have been rescued.

The Americans have stood by their posts since a snowslide wrecked their powerhouse and buried their supplies Jan. 8. Their sole contact with civilization was through occasional flights of planes of the First Arctic Search and Rescue Squadron, which dropped some food and equipment.

Two U. S. vessels—the Coast Guard ice-breaker Storis and the Army transport Belle Isle—rammed through the pack ice to reach the lonely radio-weather station.

As the vessels nosed through the narrow channel to the outpost six men put out in a small boat. The other five men remained to operate the station.

All 11 were "well and in good spirits."

"This is like receiving blood plasma at the critical moment," declared S-Sgt. Chester A. Mileski, Chicago, sipping his first cup of coffee since July.

AWOL, He Faced Wrong Judge

Pvt. Wendall Newhall, 30, of Sagamore st., Lynn, ran into the wrong judge today.

As he was arraigned on a charge of drunkenness before Judge Ralph W. Reeve, the latter, also chairman of Draft Board 89, inquired:

"Aren't you AWOL?"

"Oh, no, your Honor," Newhall replied, "I'm not due at Lake Placid until tomorrow."

"The name is very familiar," Judge Reeve said. "I'm sure I have a notice at the office that you are AWOL."

He suspended court and sent for the notice.

It disclosed that as far as the Second Service Command was concerned Pvt. Newhall was AWOL. Judge Reeve ordered him held in $1000 and continued the case until tomorrow so that the Army could be notified.

Everybody likes company when lunchtime rolls around. It's always a sociable spot in the busy day—a chance to talk, to laugh, be friendly and refreshed. And the big red cooler is the place to meet for it. At the words Have a Coke things pick up and good-fellowship begins.

You naturally hear Coca-Cola called by its friendly abbreviation "Coke". Both mean the quality product of The Coca-Cola Company.

Supply Convoy Off China Coast

ABOARD SOUTH CHINA FORCE FLAGSHIP, Yellow Sea, Sept. 19 (delayed) (AP)—First American convoy—16 cargo ships and eight warships—to bring water-borne supplies to China in nearly four years was off the mouth of the Yangtze river this afternoon, awaiting pilotage for the final 42-mile run up river to Shanghai, where the ships will unload and then take aboard civilian internees and war prisoners.

On arrival at Shanghai, Seabees and Army port command units will set up an operating base which eventually will feed supplies to all U. S. forces in China. Greatest immediate need is aviation gasoline.

Fashion in Bold Return to Glitter, Glamor

Fashion

TOMORROW the world is bright and so are the new lipsticks . . . the brightest red you ever did see to complement the spirit of the future and to bring a bang of exciting color to those lips for facial accent that must not be denied.

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE
Beauty and Fashion Editor

SUDDENLY YOUR HEART SINGS . . . there's a new feeling in the air and from the darkness of war years you realize everything has become bright. Yes, that's it . . . bango bright . . . the out-of-the-clouds awakening that a shoulder to the wheel does add up to a job well done . . . that the facing of realities and the solving of problems can bring a glorious victory!

It's a feeling of confidence, a knowing that the tasks ahead can be handled too, no fear. And fashion . . . ever on her toes . . . gets into the spirit of things and decrees a bright outlook for fall, clear bright color, sharply defined lines, no indecision.

Fashion shows are replete with such clear cut silhouettes . . . with bold splashes of color and a splurging in femininity such as what we had almost come to forget. This season we hail the return of glitter and glamor . . . and no fooling or those homecoming guys will be mighty disappointed if those dreams that got better all the time fizzle out.

THEY WANT YOU PRETTY

Many of Uncle Sam's stalwarts have taken time out to put their feelings on paper using us as an intermediary in passing it on to you girls they hope soon to rejoin. They want you so pretty and feminine . . . so clinging-vine-like and lovable . . . oozing with charm and the drippier the better.

We know everything will be bango bright. And we can think of no better way to express the hope of the future . . . the confidence in tomorrow . . . than with an exclamatory lipstick . . . one which serves, literally and figuratively, as beauty's mouthpiece.

Many cosmetic houses are launching lipsticks in this new and bold and victoriously bright red color so indicative of the times . . . but one of the best that's come our way for accent personally is a mouth definer that is clear red in the highest of spirits . . . that doesn't pull any punches when it adheres to the lips and that carries out its deliberately designed exciting purpose.

We love it with gray . . . but it would be just as grand with the new neutral beiges . . . and yet in complete harmony with the true reds and greens so popular this fall. It is scented in an exquisite fragance which your lips will favor.

For the name of this exclamatory red lipstick, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

JEWEL EMBROIDERY gives a casual town costume an air of elegance that carries it through cocktails and dinner such as this little Maurice Rentner number which has a dash of color and glitter boldly streaked across the sleeves and upper bodice. The brilliant unbroken stroke of this inset pairs color and sparkle and is as intriguing as the broken hemline which is so fetchingly displayed by the model's pose. Note the bold hat accent.—R. M.

She Wants To Go Out

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

At my place of employment I've become acquainted with a man who is single. He has the qualities I like in a man and is of excellent character. He has asked me to go out with him, but I've refused because I think he's too old for me. He's 58 and I'm 35 years of age. What do you think about this difference in ages?

A READER.

There could be absolutely no objection to a person of your age going out with an older man. He hasn't asked you to marry him, and you're not certain if he has anything more in view than a pleasant friendship. Why not go out and enjoy yourself?

If later on he does propose marriage, then is the time to consider such things as his health, his ability to take care of you, and if he has outstanding family obligations. Meanwhile, I think it's very sensible for you to go out with a person you find congenial.

Present to Baby Calls for Thanks

DEAR Mrs. Beeckman, I am expecting a baby soon, and I have already received a number of gifts. I would like to send thank-you notes, and I would so much appreciate it if you would kindly give me some suggestions as to what I should write, and one or two forms of notes.

"EXPECTING."

An excellent "recipe" for your notes of appreciation is: (1) thanks for the thought; (2) mention the gift specifically, not just "your gift," and (3) comment enthusiastically on special features of the gift. For example:

"How good of you, and how delightfully characteristic of you, to plan such happiness and comfort for my baby. The little flannel robe is a beauty, so dainty, so beautifully made, and so soft that I know what a joy it is going to be to 'him-or-her.'

After the baby arrives, I hope you will come soon to see this new member of our family, and see too what a jay and comfort your lovely gift will bring.

"Affectionately,"

New Bonnets for Fall Really Big, But They're Charming Nonetheless

By BETTINA BEDWELL

WHILE THERE are more bonnets in the millinery styles than ever this fall, they are not the same bonnet as last year. Bonnets this time are really big. They are not pint-size or anything like it. They fit down over the head and are inspired by bonnets worn by ladies of the Directoire, if you happen to want to know where they come from. They aren't any less charming because they come big, and they are going to do a better job of protecting your head.

One of the outstanding bonnet styles of this fall is sketched. It comes from that clever designer, John Frederics, and is made of soft beige felt, beige being a very swanky hat color this season. As you can see, the bonnet has a big, rather high squared crown and a soft folded brim of the felt. It is trimmed with profuse bows of beige satin ribbon, and the ribbon is wound around the brim, too.

WITH so many veterans returning to civil life, any number of new homemakers are going to try their hand at pleasing friend husband, and competing with his recollections of "mother's home cooking" or "mother's housekeeping."

One of the requisites of food preparation is a trustworthy cook book of tested recipes. Study it well and follow directions with care.

When cooking for two, it's a good idea to try using one recipe in several different ways. Often a full recipe can be made and used for several occasions. A rich baking powder biscuit dough, for instance, will make shortcakes for one meal, toasted biscuits for another, and perhaps coffee cake for a third if baked in a sheet and covered with a little cinnamon and sugar.

Cake batter may be baked as loaves, layers, cupcakes and used for cottage pudding.

MAKING COFFEE

An important thing for every wife to remember is that, men love good coffee. Having a reputation for serving good coffee is an excellent way to keep a husband happy. It's so easy to make delicious coffee, too, if you just follow a few simple rules.

Measure coffee and water accurately, using plenty of coffee. Best results are obtained if you use 2 level tablespoons of coffee to a cup of freshly drawn water. And be sure to make the full amount your coffee maker calls for, and you'll have a much better brew. Every coffee-making device is designed to be used to full capacity, and works best that way.

It's advisable to have two sizes in coffee pots, because when you have guests you'll need more coffee than the four to six cups you make for yourself and your husband. Keep equipment absolutely clean, washing and scouring it thoroughly after each use and rinsing with clear water. Never boil coffee. Serve coffee immediately after it is brewed.

GETTING MOST FROM MEAT

Meats, as you know, must also be carefully prepared or valuable food factors will be destroyed. When cooking meats, for example, it is nearly always best to use low or medium heat. Thiamine (Vitamin B-1) is especially sensitive to heat, so in order to get the most out of your meat keep your heat low and your oven moderate. In this way the meat will cook evenly and be more tender. Moderate heat also helps to control the shrinkage. Tougher meat especially should have long, slow cooking.

Desserts are really the easiest art of the meal planned for two. Cakes can be baked in small pans, while puddings and custards can be kept for several days in the refrigerator. Fruit, either cooked or raw, is an old standby when it comes to a quick and easy dessert. Store ice cream, too, is easy when available and gives a party aspect to everyday meals.

Cooking can be fun if you approach it with the right attitude. And it's stimulating as well for its daily challenge to your imagination.

LEARNING HOUSEKEEPING TIPS

And housekeeping can be just as much fun in the postwar world with all the new gadgets devised to make it a small part of the daily routine. However, there are always a few old-fashioned practices that never go out of date, and always mark the careful housekeeper.

For instance, you know that sunlight causes curtain fabrics to "rot" so the part of the curtain that gets the most exposure to sun, usually gives out first. Curtains will last longer if they are reversed ocasionally or shifted from sunny spots to shady ones.

Sheets usually wear through first in the upper center where they take the most rubbing from shoulders and also are creased in ironing. To give them more wear, reverse them from time to time in making beds, placing the wide hem at the foot.

Rugs last longer if they are turned about occasionally, especially room-sized rugs that get heaviest wear near doors, or in front of lounges or easy chairs.

FRESHENING THE AIR

And whether you're a new homemaker or a not-so-new one, you'll agree that when you're through cleaning your house and everything looks spic and span, you like to have it smell fresh, too. Don't you? Well, that can be done easily today with the aid of an air refresher. It's the finishing touch to a sparkling home—for a spotless house must be a sweet-smelling one.

It's as simple as this: open a bottle of air refresher—there's nothing to light, nothing to burn. You simply place the bottle on any convenient table, lift the cap with the wishbone-wick attached, and soon your room will be filled with the fresh, soothing breath of country air.

You know, of course, that there's nothing like practice if you would keep a well-ordered house and serve well-cooked and appetizing meals—practice with new ones and improve on old ones.

Bowles Sees Huge Drop in Income

NEW YORK, Sept. 21 (INS)—OPA Director Chester Bowles warned that if the price control program is sacked during reconversion the nation will suffer a collapse that will "shake our whole economic foundation."

Bowles spoke before the National Industrial Conference Board, and quoted "several groups" of Washington economists as agreeing that there will be only a superficial boom in 1946, attended by big profits and dividends.

But more important, Bowles declared, the gross national income will drop by $25,000,000,000 and 9,000,000 persons will be unemployed by midwinter. Christman, 1946, he predicted, will still find 6,000,000 unemployed.

Story of 3 Fliers at Met

By PEGGY DOYLE

"You Came Along," the Met's new picture, has something important to say for our fighting men and the psychological influence of the war upon them and subsequent civilian fraternization.

That it doesn't come off as successfully as desired may be attributed to the abundance of sugar in the Hollywood larder despite alleged world shortages.

Frequently moving and occasionally ironically humorous, this genuinely promising story of three fliers back from overseas action to stimulate war bond buying eventually succumbs to an overdose of treackle.

Robert Cummings, Don De Fore and Charles Drake, as the fliers, and Paramount's new discovery, Lizabeth Scott, who has Lauren Bacall's throaty tones without her tang, turn in good performances but they are bogged down by a script that hasn't the courage of its ideas and is further handicapped by purposeless direction.

Cynical, recklessly gay and completely alien in the civilian world to which they have returned, the three fliers disconcert aging stuffed-shirts with their wolf-call, "huba-huba," or unhep room-clerks with their so adequate "Roger." Routine before takeoffs on the hectic, highly successful war bond tour are fond, lingering "briefing-room" farewells and the bestowal of four le merite ribbons (purchased in gross) upon the girls they've learned to adore in an hour more or less.

Shepherding the heroes on the tour is the U. S. Treasury's infinitely patient and magnificently resourceful Miss Scott. Before love comes to one of the fliers, Cummings, and Miss Scott, the picture has bite and honesty. The one they call Shakespeare (Don de Fore) because he can quote at the drop of a comma is congratulating himself on his luck in the war, turns to the ex-prizefighter Charles Drake, "Put up your leg, I want to knock wood."

After love flies in, the picture takes a nosedive into pathos. Cummings is doomed by a mysterious disease involving gluttonous white corpuscles. It is very sketchily described, is never made clear how whether he got it in the war but it is given as the reason for the mad gaiety of the devoted trio.

Lizabeth and Bob marry, she knowing he is dying and he believing she is ignorant of his fatal condition. The going here is sloppily sentimental and pointless and seems prolonged even beyond the actual footage.

"You Came Along" has some poignantly moving moments, speaks with courage and forthrightness of wartime love and its heartbreak risks and presents the fighting man's problems in adjusting to civilian life. It might have been a fine picture if its emotions were not puny moving-picture emotions.

Randolph's Police Chief Shows Who Is Town Boss

By AUSTEN LAKE

I LIKE THE TOWN OF RANDOLPH! It embodies the best pioneer traditions of New England. Its wide streets are arched by grandfatherly elms. Its homes are immaculate with white paint. Its air is sweet with curly woodsmoke. And its citizens spring from the sturdy colonial, buckskin stock which originally carved the town from the primitive wilderness, fought injuns and came to regard strangers with dark suspicion.

I like Randolph! But I will hesitate to go there any more! Because Pat McDonnell, the town's police commissioner, is very allergic to journalists—which is a phobia not unshared by other people. The only thing that Pat hates worse than a journalist is two journalists and if he does not know a law allowing him to bag same, he will create a law on the spot and bag them anyway. As I propose to demonstrate!

The unfortunate victims in this case are Bill Playfair, a Boston reporter, and John Sheehan, a Boston camera snapper, whom Time Magazine detailed last week to do a resume on Randolph's refusal to restore Ed Clark, a wounded war veteran, to a fair facsimile of his old police job. I will confess that ordinarily I would loudly cheer any cop who snatched a Time Magazine guy, on whatever pretext. But Bill and John are both brothers in the local news lodge, reputable, genial characters who were doubling in brass, so to speak, while the regular Time correspondent was busy elsewhere.

Pat Goes Into a Creamy Froth

IT WAS PRETTY HARD TO GET the coherent story of what happened because Bill and John were emotionally upset when they told me about it. Bill said Pat resembled a veritable Japanese god of wrath. John just said he frightened the gizzards out of 'em.

Anyway, Bill and John mooched around Randolph on this day practicing their craft. Bill asked some stray citizens, who were spit'n-whittlin', about the recent town meeting where the enfranchised residents voted, 2 to 1, against creating a police desk job for Ed Clark, who asked it so he wouldn't aggravate his wounded knee. And John was popping his black box at this and that.

Every little while they'd drop by the police station to see if Chief McDonnell had come back from the town wars and always found the place full of vacuity. Finally, toward evening they rolled up to Pat's house and, sure enough, there was Pat looking like a florid Santa Claus and just as genial. So, without asking who they were, Pat said sure, come inside and what's all the commotion?

Bill began quizzing Pat gently on the Clark question and asked: "F'instance, had Pat said he would take the police desk job himself if one were created?" And Pat immediately quit looking like a benevolent Santa and assumed a ponderous puss like the tied top of a potato sack and got out his police chief's voice and said he wasn't talking. Then, as a chat-teaser, Bill remarked that maybe Pat would like to hear what the town's political opposition was saying about him? This intrigued Pat, who perked up his ears and agreed he would. So Bill mentioned a few things and Pat foamed into a creamy froth and, with no regard for logic, said all newspaper men were no good.

Now I wish to testify personally that I know several nice persons among my Boston news confreres who should not be included in Pat's sweeping category. Bill felt that way, too, so he asked Pat why he held such a deep aversion to our genre and Pat said, "Because they ask too many questions," and, for emphasis, added, "Shut up asking so many questions."

Pat Almost Parked 'Em in the Sneezy

NATURALLY THAT INDUCED A DULL resentment in Bill's bosom. Because reporters are accustomed to the utmost courtesy from the many types we encounter, including some uncultured characters. So Bill in an injured tone inquired, "Well, do you expect me to lick your boots?" That was, of course, a logical question! But its effect on Pat was highly psychopathic. Because, Bill relates, Pat began repeating hysterically, "Lick your boots . . . lick your boots," like he was a gramaphone with its needle stuck. And he got redder and redder, says Bill with awe, till he assumed the appearance of a ripe pimento and suddenly shouted, "Get outa here, both of you."

Bill concedes that it was Pat's inalienable right to yell "Get outa here," since every man's house is his castle. So if Pat didn't like his house-guests he was entitled to holler, "Get outa here," however gruffly. So Bill and John acceded to Pat's wish with almost electric impulse. In their effort to please, they tried to pass through Pat's screen door without opening it and, both at once, started down the stairs.

But Pat had only approached the pinnacle of his emotional moment. Summoning the full authority of his majestic basso, developed by 20 years of traffic duty, he yelled "Stop!" It came as a Jovian thunderclap, said Bill, who tells how they not only stopped, but froze like a pair of paralytics. Because, said Bill, in these distraught days all forms of violent fratricide are common and coroner's juries are sometimes very broad-minded. So while they listened to their heart-thumps, Pat descended in deliberate footfalls and speared them with a glittering eye. "A veritable glare of doom," says Bill.

Pat indicated John's battered bus and snapped, "Who's driving that car?" To which John breathed softly, "I am." Pat leered triumphantly and including Bill in his optical orbit, barked, "Gimme your driver's license. And your registrations and your Army draft cards." Which both did after palsied effort. So Pat scribbled down the damning data while Bill's voice thawed sufficiently to ask, "What's that for?"

Pat glowered heavily for a moment and said, "That's to show you who's boss of this town," which both Bill and John agree is none other than Chief Pat McDonnell. "I'm glad I had those cards," sighed Bill later. "Or I'd, a still been in the Randolph, sneezy." See [illegible]

Nats Skid, Cubs in Peril

Detroit may back into the American League pennant by matching Washington loss for loss but the Cardinals are taking care that Chicago will have to win the National League flag the hard way. Harry Brecheen played with Charlie Grimm's dancing Bruins last night, shutting them out with only six hits, 2-0, for the Cardinals' 15th victory in 20 starts against the Cubs.

The Red Birds are only two games behind Chicago with eight to go. Two more with the Cubs are slated next Tuesday and Wednesday and may decide the race. The Cards meanwhile entertain Cincinnati twice while Chicago is at home to Pittsburgh for a three-game set.

St. Louis' three night games at Sportsman's Park produced three keen pitching duels. Brecheen's decision over Ray Prim was most important to Billy Southworth's tattered crew which would have been virtually eliminated, four games behind, if they hadn't won.

Phil Cavaretta, Chicago's candidate for the batting title, slammed his first hit of the series, a double in the ninth, while his average shrank to .350, only one point ahead of oBston's Tommy Holmes.

Both National League contenders are idle today.

Washington missed a chance to go into a virtual tie for the lead and Detroit blew an opportunity to take a commanding league when the two dropped respective 6-1 decisions to New York and Cleveland. As a result, Steve O'Neill's Bengals retained their one-game advantage.

With Washington running out of games to play—they have only four more, counting today's finale with the Yanks—the odds favor Detroit, though they don't play again until tomorrow and Sunday, when St. Louis invades Briggs Stadium for two single tilts. In all, the Tigers have six to go.

Ex-Revere Gridders Aid Coach Kenneally

By MIKE GILLOOLY

You'd have to travel quite a few miles to find a coach with more enthusiasm and pep than George Kenneally, the Revere High School mentor, and his football team has picked up his vigor to such an extent that the Beach City fans are convinced that they're in for a flashback to 1942.

That was the season that Coach Gigi baited every team in the state without a nibble, quite sincere that his outfit could topple any of them.

Well, Revere has three of that starting team back! But before calling for an investigation of classes, birth records, etc., they're back as unofficial assistants to Coach Kenneally in his practice sessions—and all three are in uniform. Billy Parsons, the All-Scholastic end, comes over in Marine uniform from the Chelsea Naval Hospital; Chris DeSisto and Joe Mennone, in Navy garb, come directly off their ship, docked in South Boston.

Their tips to the boys have created quite a furore among the six returning veterans so that the entire squad has been on its toes from the start of practice to the finish.

"Just let us get by Lawrence Sunday afternoon, and it's going to take a whale of a team to stop us," predicts Coach Kenneally. "Lawrence is going to be very tough and the boys know it. They'll have to really fight for this one."

Revere's line will be big and fast with two changes from the starting frontier in the Jamboree against Lynn English. A pair of juniors, Herb Hodus and George Bazer, have so progressed that they'll probably be in starting berths Sunday. Hodus, a 200-pound tackle, had edged Justin Capodilupo, a 225-pound sophomore, while Bazer, 175-pound guard has been outfighting veteran Mike Langone for the berth.

Neither is definite, as yet, but they may get the calls.

At right end, Roger DiPiano, 174, will be back to take his usual place with Roddy Harmon, 170, slated for first string on the other wing. Tony Andriotta, another veteran at 192 pounds, will swing into the tackle; Ed Haggerty, 170-pound guard, and Roy French, 170, at center, will complete a Revere line that will have had more than its share of experience.

Coach Kenneally's backfield will have the offensive trickery, speed and versatility to go places. Quarterback Vin Palmisano will be the only newcomer. He'll be directing the attack for Jerry Sarno, a regular since his sophomore years who can kick and pass. Rocco Cerrone and Mike Casoli, who will probably do most of the extra duty work. The trio played together last fall.

Other Revere players who will see plenty of service include: Ends — Walter Lagorio and Jerry Halper; tackles—Alex Pagiarulo, Steve Sweeney and Bill Coffey; guards—Vin Raponi, Joe Costanza and Charlie Shishmanian; center —Mike Garafalo; backs—Walter Perry, Dick Laurano, Walter McDonald and Ed Ferragamo.

After Lawrence Sunday, Revere's schedule lists: (at) Chelsea, Sept. 20; Peabody, Oct. 7; Providence, R. I., Oct. 14; (at) Saugus, Oct. 21; Immaculate Conception, Oct. 28; Nashua, Nov. 4; Watertown, Nov. 10; Lynn Classical, Nov. 18; (at) Winthrop, Thanksgiving.

New Bedford in For Arlington

Schoolboy football will officially open its season this week-end but two of the most attractive contests on the card have been erased by the dreaded polio . . . the top tilt of the program, Arlington vs. Newton, was cancelled earlier this week . . . and now the Winthrop vs. Marblehead get-together has been cancelled.

Winthrop's right tackle, Eddie Ruskin, a veteran Merchant Mariner who went overseas last May to France and England before it was discovered that he was only 15 years of age, has been stricken . . . the entire squad has been quarantined for two weeks so that it's possible that the game with Danvers next week may be cancelled . . . Coach Gordie Connors will continue to work out the squad mornings.

Newton, meanwhile, contacted New Bedford Vocational to open its season tomorrow at Dickinson Stadium . . . but in signing the Whalers, the Garden City eleven has lost the color that was associated with Arlington . . . and as a result, the Somerville-Chelsea clash at Memorial Stadium, Chelsea, takes over as the local headliner.

And that'll be a game of revenge . . . Coach Tom Lynch suffered an 18-6 setback last fall, his only loss . . . he'll only have Bill Aviszus, qb, and Harold Landers, end, back from that team . . . but Coach Lynch has scrimmaged his outfit to such an extent that they'll be ready for the Class B titlists.

Chelsea opened its campaign in a scoreless deadlock against Lynn English . . . but Coach Henry McCarthy unveiled a nifty back in Mike Opolka, carrying on for his brother Nick, killed in action in Germany . . . Opolka will be teaming with Johnnie Glowacki, Angelo "Shadow" DiNofrio and Joe Bishop.

Malden, battered and bruised from its recent opener against Nashua, will be packing the Pearl st. Stadium for its international tangle with the high school of Montreal . . . half the game will be played Canadian style (12-men) and the other half in the usual manner . . . Tommy Manastersky, 185-pound back with the visitors, will be renewing acquaintances . . . he played against the Brookline Junior Legion nine recently.

And don't be surprised if Class C defending champion, Mariboro, gets tipped over in this opener . . . Coach Jim Mastrogiovanni has a crackerjack in back Andy Wettlauffer, catcher on the baseball team . . . Coach Mastrogiovanni had plenty of surprises in store in his first season with the Belmont eleven . . . just ask Chelsea, or Weymouth, or Brookline.

Medford, victim of a cancellation of its opener, will move up to Haverhill for its initial test . . . and Coach Eddie Pidgeon's boys are just aching to get into action . . . this contest could produce the state champion, according to reports.

Tonight's floodlight schedule will be loaded . . . there'll be three Catholic Leaguers in action . . . and the North Shore's twin favorites, Salem and Peabody . . . the Tanners captured the class A crown last fall but they had to settle with an 0-0 tie with the Witches . . . and Coach Glenn O'Brien's outfit proved its worth in Florida . . . both have chalked up first triumphs of the season.

And there'll be action on the South Shore . . . highlighted by the Quincy at Brockton meeting . . . the Granite City eleven is strong . . . and Brockton's never a pop-over.

BLAIR AT FRANKLIN

Bob Blair, recently discharged veteran, will be leading the parade of top flight drivers who will be on the starting line in the floodlight auto racing to be held tonight at the Franklin speedway.

Syracuse Eleven Tests M'Keever's Cornell Clan

By JACK CONWAY

Ed McKeever, former Boston College and Notre Dame coach, will send his Cornell eleven into action for the first time this season against Syracuse at Syracuse tomorrow.

McKeever has had only ordinary material with which to work, but is confident that Cornell will make a creditable showing.

Ed McKeever

At Cornell it has not been McKeever's good fortune to have a wealth of material such as he had at Notre Dame when he took over Frank Leahy's duties when the latter entered the Navy. Many members of the Cornell squad are youngsters who lack experience. McKeever has drilled his squad in the fundamentals of the open game, and will watch them hopefully as they go into action against Syracuse tomorrow.

Cornell graduates have displayed more interest than ever in their football team with McKeever as its coach. When McKeever visited Boston to attend a Cornell luncheon, he received an enthusiastic greeting. Ed appeared at similar luncheons in all parts of the United States in an effort to stimulate interest in football at Ithaca.

With his background at Boston College and Notre Dame, McKeever is fitted to lead Cornell to new heights in football. It will probably take him two years to get his football system rolling properly.

While Cornell is battling Syracuse, the West will have two important football games. Indiana will oppose Michigan at Ann Arbor while Pittsburgh will take on Illinois at Champaign.

An idea of the great crowds that will attend football games this year may be gained from the news that all tickets have been sold for the Notre Dame-Navy clash at the Cleveland Municipal Stadium on November third. Notre Dame will also play before a sellout crowd when it opposes Army in New York. The Irish still rank as the top attraction in football.

Notre Dame against either Boston College or Harvard in Boston would draw a capacity crowd. In fact, if the Irish were to oppose either the Crimson or the Eagles in this city, there would be 100,000 persons who would be eager to see the contest.

Tigers and Senators

The Tigers and Senators have given baseball fans more thrills than they expected as they came battling down the stretch in the American League pennant fight. Detroit has stood up under terrific pressure, while the Senators have refused to crack.

When major league baseball got underway in the spring, it was not certain there would be a World Series, while most clubs were in doubt as to the caliber of the players they would have as the season progressed. The successful conclusion of the war has made it possible for the various clubs to gain new strength, and the stirring finish between the Tigers and Senators has given color and sparkle to the baseball picture.

The Cubs look as if they will win the National League pennant, while either the Tigers or the Senators would do credit to the American League in a World Series.

Increase Fair Purses

Eddie Carroll has increased the purses for his Great Barrington Fair which will come to a close tomorrow. The $500 purses have been increased to $600 while the $800 purses remain the same. The purse increases were made retroactive to last Monday's races. Great Barrington is paying the highest purses in the history of the Massachusetts Fair Circuit. The mutuel handle at the meeting has been going 20 per cent ahead of that of a year ago, and it will establish a new mark.

Chairman Louis Hoffman and Commissioner Harry Allen of the Massachusetts Racing Commission have been attending the races at Great Barrington.

Random Shots at Target

Mike Jacobs says he has no knowledge as to when Joe Louis may be discharged from the Army. Billy Conn is expected to get his Army discharge within a few days. Jacobs says he will not try to arrange any details for a Louis-Conn bout until both heavyweights are out of service.

If Louis gets his Army discharge by early next year, he will risk his title against Conn in a 15-round bout that will be held next June. Louis is anxious to get into training as soon as possible as he weighs 218 pounds. He will have to take off at least ten pounds to get fit to meet Conn.

Uclan-Trojan Duel Grid 'Best'

The 1945 college football season gets rolling in high gear today and tomorrow even though last year's powerhouses, Army, Navy and Ohio State, do not open their seasons until next week, according to the Associated Press.

Topping the list tonight are the Southern California-UCLA setto before 75,000 in Los Angeles Coliseum and the collision between Kentucky and Mississippi at Memphis.

Tomorrow the Western Conference starts, with Indiana tangling with Michigan before 45,000 at Ann Arbor, while Duke entertains South Carolina at Durham.

In the East, the main contest pits Cornell against Syracuse at Syracuse.

Several intersectional engagements dot the program. Pitt tackles Illinois at Champaign, Texas Christian tangles with Kansas City, and Coast Guard Academy takes the field against Virginia at Charlottesville.

Other good games include Villanova-Bucknell at Lewisburg, Pa.; Wisconsin vs. Great Lakes at Great Lakes; Marquette vs. Purdue at Lafayette, Ind.; St. Mary's vs. California at Berkeley and Fort Warren vs. Colorado.

The Big Six Conference invaded the Big Ten, with Iowa State playing Northwestern at Evanston and Missouri meeting Minnesota at Minneapolis.
